5th September 1958]

At about mid-night on that day a message was received by Government from Sri K. Srinivasan, Managing Editor, that he felt unsafe to leave the office without police bundobust. Under instructions from the Government, the Commissioner of Police accompanied by the Deputy Commissioner of Police (Law and Order) immediately proceeded to the " Hindu " Office. On reaching there, they learnt from the Inspector on duty that though an assurance of sufficient bandobust and escort was given to Sri Srinivasan by the Inspector, Sri Srinivasan was unwilling to leave the premises unless the Commissioner of Police was personally present. Sri Srinivasan informed the Commissioner of Police that he had requested the presence of the Commissioner of Police not for the purpose of escorting him home, but for giving an assurance to loyal workers. Sri Srinivasan told the Commissioner of Police that the morale of the loyal workers was breaking down and requested him to address the workers and to encourage them to continue to work. The Commissioner of Police declined to do so, stating that it was no part of his functions to address loyal labourers to continue to work. Sri Srinivasan then decided to suspend the publication of the paper and left the office.

5th August 1958.—At the request of the management police escort was provided for the transport of 38 employees at about 9-30 a.m. In regard to the remaining employees numbering about 200, the management wanted them to be transported in police vehicles as they had no vehicles at their disposal. Arrangements were made to secure the required number of vehicles and by about 3 p.m. all the workers were able to leave the office.

It would be seen from the above account that the Government had provided every possible protection and bandobust to " The Hindu " and that the complaint of lack of Police protection is totally unsustainable.
